

We have tried to make this Performance Parts website comprehensive and factual. We reserve the right, however, to make changes at any time, without notice, to materials, equipment, specifications, and availability. Specifications, dimensions, measurements, ratings, and other numbers are based upon design and engineering information, prototypes and laboratory tests. Since some information may have been updated, please check with your dealer for complete details.

This website is a listing of engines and components currently available from Chevrolet Performance Parts. Although available for purchase by anyone, a certain amount of knowledge and skill is required for satisfactory installation and operation of high performance engines and components. We would highly recommend that you speak with an experienced technician, engine builder or machinist before purchasing a Chevy Performance Parts product that you may not be familiar with.